Just a few miles off Interstate 77, centrally located between Columbia and Charlotte, Chester State Park rests in the quiet hills of the South Carolina Piedmont region and for generations has been a haven for hiking, picnicking and boating to the surrounding communities. The Civilian Conservation Corps built the park, and its work can still be seen and enjoyed today.

The park's 523 acres include a 160-acre lake, with a two-mile nature trail that follows along the shoreline up to the Civilian Conservation Corps-built stone spillway. Johnboat rentals are popular in the warmer months, and the park also offers a boat ramp for visitors with electric or hand-powered personal boats. Picnicking, rental picnic shelters, and a large playground system are located along the shoreline. Chester State Park also offers the first SC State Park tournament sanctioned Disc Golf Course. This 27 hole course has 3 loops suitable for professional, tournament play... with 18 of these holes having alternative tees for beginner/amateur level players. Lakeview Hall, a fully enclosed meeting facility overlooking the park lake, is regularly used for weddings, reunions, and corporate meetings. Boy Scouts, church groups and many other organized groups frequent the primitive group camping area throughout the year. Chester State Park's 25-site campground is open year round and has many sites that may accommodate anything from single tents to 40-foot RVs.
